From the Chair

By Allison Taylor

The definition of endorsement is “an act of giving one’s public approval or support to someone or something”.

With our endorsement meeting is just around the corner, I wanted to take a second to write about what the endorsement of the 30th LD really means to a candidate or initiative. Seeing as how we are one of the larger Legislative Districts in King County, it is important to remember our word of support casts a long shadow over a massive number of Democrats.

Ensuring we chose someone who supports our values; someone we believe will not only do the work to be elected, but then represent us well once they take office, is quite a pressure filled task in many races each year.

Sometimes we are certain about a candidate because we know them. The person has held office before, done well and we trust they will continue to do good work. Other times we are faced with fresh faces including some candidates who have never held a public office. These situations require us to listen to their words, watch their actions, take in all the information we can, process it and make the best decision possible using all of the gathered data. There may even be times where we have a candidate we know and have supported in the past, but feel there is reason to question their current ability to service our LD successfully. We must never be afraid to question the status quo.

We also need to be mindful of the idea that just because a candidate is a Democrat, they will be endorsed by our Body. It can be appreciated that one is willing to file for an office and run a campaign but it should not be expected that just because the candidate lives in our District and shares our values, the person will receive the public approval that is an endorsement.

The Body should never blindly support a candidate who only shows minimal effort or does not appear to want to do the hard work necessary to get elected. If they do not want to make the effort now, how are we to believe that they are going to fight for us on their respective level, be it local, state or national?

So as we get into the thick of our endorsement season, we should make sure that if we are giving our PUBLIC approval to a candidate, they are truly the most qualified person for the position, not just a Democrat who wants another notch on their belt without showing us their plan of action in return.
